DIFFICULTY
Easy

Cooking the pasta directly in chicken bone broth gives it a flavor somewhere between chicken noodle soup and mac and cheese, and shredded carrot and peas sneak in extra veggies without a fuss. It comes together in one pot in about 15 minutes, making it a reliable go-to for toddlers and picky eaters alike.

Pasta & Veggies

Cooked together in one pot

Alphabet pasta (or any short-cut pasta)	4 oz
Chicken bone broth	1■ cups
Carrot, shredded	1
Frozen peas	½ cup

Regular broth, stock, or even water works if you don't have bone broth on hand.

Finishing

Stirred in once pasta is tender

Butter	1 tbsp
Heavy cream	1 tbsp
White cheddar, shredded	1 oz

Directions

COOK THE PASTA

- 1 Add pasta, bone broth, carrot, and peas to a medium-sized pot over medium-high heat.
- 2 Bring to a boil. Stir frequently until the pasta is al dente, about 8–10 minutes.

FINISH & SERVE

- 1 Stir in the butter, cream, and cheese until well-combined and creamy.
- 2 Add salt and pepper, if desired, and serve immediately.

Tips & Variations

- Try protein-packed chickpea pasta, like Banza, for added nutrients.
- If there's leftover liquid in the pot after cooking, simmer a minute or two longer, or drain slightly before stirring in the cheese.
- Grate in a bit of broccoli along with the carrot to sneak in even more veggies.
