DIFFICULTY
Easy

A pared-back weeknight miso ramen built on dashi, sesame oil, and a handful of pantry staples. No long simmer, no fussy prep — just a warm, savory bowl in under 15 minutes. Great as a base recipe to customize with whatever toppings you have on hand.

Broth

The soup base

Dashi stock	4 cups
Miso paste (white or red)	3 tbsp
Sesame oil	1 tbsp
Garlic, minced	2 cloves
Soy sauce	1 tbsp
Mirin	1 tbsp

Water plus instant dashi granules works in place of fresh dashi stock.

Noodles & Toppings

Cook noodles in the broth, add toppings when plating

Ramen noodles (fresh or dried)	2 servings
Green onions, sliced	to taste
Corn kernels	to taste
Boiled egg	to taste

Directions

BUILD THE BROTH

- 1 Heat sesame oil in a pot over medium heat. Cook minced garlic for 1 minute until fragrant.
- 2 Pour in dashi stock, soy sauce, and mirin. Bring to a gentle boil.
- 3 Turn heat down to low. Add ramen noodles and cook until soft — about 3 minutes for fresh, 4–5 minutes for dried.

FINISH & SERVE

- 1 Place miso paste in a small ladle, dip into the warm broth, and stir with chopsticks until fully dissolved. Do not let the soup boil after adding miso.
- 2 Divide noodles and broth among bowls. Add green onions, corn, boiled egg, and any other toppings. Serve immediately.

Tips & Variations

- Always dissolve miso off the boil — high heat kills the live cultures and dulls the flavor.
- For a soft-boiled egg topping, boil for 6.5 minutes, then ice-bath immediately. Halve when plating.
- Add a knob of butter to each bowl for a richer, creamier broth (miso butter ramen style).
